celebrates its 20th anniversary

The sweet sounds of the national instrument, moko jumbies and pierrot grenades welcomed guests as they arrived at Mille Fleurs—the National Trust building—one of the iconic properties making up the Magnificent Seven, Queen's Park Savannah.

On Saturday, January 21, LSA Healthcare Services Ltd (LSAH) celebrated 20 years in the commercial hygiene industry in T&T. The milestone was marked with a fitting festive celebration and award ceremony.

Leela Ramsingh, chief executive officer of LSAH, brought welcome remarks. According to Ramsingh, the seed of LSAH was planted in 2003. Ramsingh related the LSAH story to specially invited guests and staff:

"I had a vision of a better future for myself, my child and my community... my husband supported me for over the years after I made the difficult decision to leave my lucrative job." She said that she reinvested all earnings and lived on a very tight budget while building the organisation. She reflected, "Our first office was established at our home in Cunupia and has now grown with many more employees and is stronger with its Head Office located in El Socorro."

In her remarks, Ramsingh indicated how steadfast leadership, teamwork and the development of innovative product lines enabled LSAH to successfully navigate the economic downturn and turbulent times during the pandemic.

Roger Roach, director, T&T Manufacturing Association, (TTMA) brought greetings from the TTMA. He underscored the importance of organisations like LSAH being able to pivot and reinvent themselves to meet global demands.

Hummingbird Medal Gold (Culture) recipient and managing director of Trinity Insurance Brokers Limited, Surujdeo Mangaroo, was the feature speaker at the ceremony. As a mentor over the years, he reflected on the early days of LSAH and the importance of forging strong business relations. After 20 years, Mangaroo expressed how delighted he was to see the growth of the company and the continued support the husband and wife team gave each other.

Long service awards were presented to long-standing LSAH employees who were serenaded by the talented violinist, Shiva Chaitoo. Award recipients were Annette Basdeo, Lynette Basdeo, Michelle Gobin, Nekesa Edwards, Maria Duran, Daniel Mohammed, Parbatie Bissessar, Jason Agard and Jenneva Agard.

Presenters included Natalie Alcantara, ION Marketing Ltd; Lara Quentrell-Thomas, Regency Recruitment and Resources Ltd; Martin George, Attorney and founder of the Tobago Business Chamber. Also in attendance was leadership coach Charlene Pedro who has been working with the LSAH team for the past few years.

The evening ended with the vibrant sounds of the Laventille Rhythm Section, bringing a memorable end to a night of staff recognition and celebration.

Surujdeo Mangaroo presents Annette Basdeo with a Long Service Award for over 10 years of distinguished service at LSAH.

Natalie Alcantara presents Parbatie Bissessar with a Special Award.

Roger Roach presents Maria Duran with a Long Service Award for over five years of distinguished service at LSAH.

Martin George presents Annette Basdeo with Tobago Service Excellence Award.

LSAH'S PHILANTHROPY AND COMMUNITY OUTREACH

Menstrual Hygiene Day And Tackling Period Poverty:

LSA Healthcare Services Ltd, is the official Brand Ambassador for WASH-UNITED MENSTRUAL HYGIENE DAY in Trinidad and Tobago which is celebrated on May 28 annually. LSAH's commitment is giving back sanitary products to underprivileged/vulnerable girls and women in various communities to End Period Poverty.

WASH-UNITED is a cross between an NGO and a creative agency and works to build a world in which all people benefit from safe drinking water, sanitation and hygiene (WASH), including menstrual hygiene. One initiative they focus on is Menstrual Hygiene Day.

Period poverty is a serious issue that's affecting women and girls today, in the towns and cities that we live in, and
